

OE23D16

SOUNDING WATER STORIES

INSTRUCTOR

JERRY ANTONY

Jerry is a Narrative Designer and Filmmaker who's been working on mix-media narrative projects including short documentaries, experimental exhibitions, animation films, comics, etc. Jerry has had a multicultural upbringing that reflects in their work. He likes to read, travel, and explore other mediums to find new narratives from the spaces and people they comes across.

OVERVIEW

We all have our experiences with water and it is multi-sensory. The workshop will explore narration of such experiences through space and sound using water. Water works with light, sound, smell, touch and taste connecting them with individual memories. Participants will explore storytelling evoking multiple senses and understand how water functions with each of these senses. Later, they will focus on the sound as an element and create dynamic sculptures to communicate their stories in space.

KEY WORDS

Sound, Sculpture, Multi-sensory, Storytelling, Memory

AVAILABILITY

15 Seats

CO- INSTRUCTOR

B.S. RAJKUMAR

Raj is a creative human with many years of experience in working with sculpting and various other artistic mediums. Raj has been constantly taking on projects to push his creative abilities. Raj has been the visual lead at Lastbench studio for three years producing exceptional work.